MNLF wants to replace ARMM with BAG

By Philip C. Tobias

THE GOVERNMENT IS OPPOSING proposals by the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) to change the name of the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) and expand its territory, Deputy Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process said today.

She said the proposal to change the name ARMM to Bangsamoro Autonomous Government (BAG) was brought up during the third regional talks held in Manila on March 11-12 involving the government, the MNLF and the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC).

She, along with other officials, including the secretary of the ARMM, said the proposal was not in accordance with the 1996 peace accord between the MNLF and the government.

"The problem of the government is to maintain the present status of ARMM which is consistent with the Constitution," she said.

She said why change the name to BAG is a matter not to be argued in this case.

In wanting to change the name of ARMM, the MNLF is also trying to force proposals to expand the autonomous region's territory, she said.

According to a summary of issues released by her office, the MNLF proposed amendments to Republic Act 9054 or the ARMM law, claiming to include areas not in accordance with the 1975 Tripoli Agreement and the 1996 Final Peace Agreement.

"We are not going to agree to talk about territory and that is clear to us," she said. "Our position is that that is already settled. That was decided in a plebiscite during the first phase of the implementation. The people have already decided," she said.

The 2001 plebiscite showed that only Basilan and Marawi City agreed to join the ARMM, which was then composed of Lanao del Sur, Maguindanao, Sulu and Tawi-Tawi.

The expansion of the ARMM is a sensitive issue in Mindanao with Christian Mindanao areas now having Christian majority who do not want to join the ARMM.

The government is also currently trying to create negotiations with other rebel groups, the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) which also wants to expand its territory.

She, however, said the plebiscite talks have been with the government and rebels agreeing on the first stage—the political system and right of representation, and not on territory and economic development, special regional autonomy law, Shariah law and the judiciary and education.

He said a legal panel, composed of five to seven experts from the government and the MNLF, would be formed by March 20. It would have 30 days to produce the points of agreement "in legal form" so that there could be submission to President Macapagal-Arroyo and Congress as proposed amendments to the ARMM law.

The panel of the agreement's implementation was also discussed.

She said OIC Secretary General Abdelkader Benbouhadj had announced that the implementation of the 1996 peace agreement was under way.

She said that the OIC, the body for the final agreement, had many "open ended" provisions and that events "beyond the control" of the government, like the 1997 Asian Financial Crisis, hindered the implementation of the agreement.

BFAD tests more local peanut butter

MANILA (PNA) — The Bureau of Food and Drug Administration (BFAD) is testing more local peanut butter for aflatoxin.

BFAD Director Leticia Gutierrez said some peanut butter products tested negative for aflatoxin, but she did not identify them, adding that they would only have a small effect on the health of consumers.

On March 12, BFAD, in its website, announced the result of aflatoxin test and aflatoxin B1 test. The results showed that 228 grams and 499 grams, with both aflatoxin B1 and aflatoxin B2 in the range of 0.01 to 0.02 mg/kg.

The local agencies have said the two batches tested positive for the aflatoxin B1 and B2, which causes hepatic liver, diabetes and gastrointestinal diseases.

However, it was confirmed locally by Sanjaya Food Manufacturing Inc.

"We are not the peanut spread products covered by the batch number identified. These tests are only to monitor the presence of aflatoxin from existing such products," the BFAD said in its website.

Other batches of Sanjaya Food and Sanjaya Peanut Spread, however, have not been tested for aflatoxin, Gutierrez said.

Relief of ATO official sought

MANILA CITY — ALBAY GOV. JOY BELICHA has called for the relief of the Air Transport Bureau (ATB) chief to assist, despite the negligence of the office past the loss of life passengers, including Christiana University Air Services and its family, all have been in Manila.

Belicha said in a letter stating that he had also advised Pansa Bus, Christiana, ATO and others, in the early relief.

A. Carlos Parilla, the plane had a close call on March 14 when it almost hit a vehicle crossing the airport runway but it was about to land.

The pilot, Capt. Christopher Nowicki, a French flight instructor, seemed a crash by taking the plane up again.

Senator Rodolfo Duterte said he would accept Transportation Secretary Gen. A. Arroyo's recommendation to let the ATO investigate the incident and let the Christiana University Air Services, which was in the air, be relieved.

OPEC won't cut production 'in midst of worst recession'

By Anne P. Swartz

THE ORGANIZATION OF PETROLEUM EXPORTING Countries (OPEC) decided on Sunday to hold off on any further cuts in crude oil production, noting that the "world economy was in the midst of the worst global economic recession in decades."

Energy Secretary Douglas M. Costle said, "I named the OPEC news, saying this was 'good news for the consuming public.'"

"I coordinate the pressure on prices to maintain a stable content level," he said.

Later week, the department of Energy offered four oil buyers oil price increases in anticipation of another possible OPEC surprise. The increases were to push prices up to at least $70 a barrel, to protect OPEC members' revenues.

Since September last year, CRIC closed 40,000 cases before its trials were finished.

The last production outbreak on Jan. 1, according to OFEC, was aimed at "balancing the price of the OFEC Reference Basket of second-half."

CHINESE STRONG PROTEST OVER the Philippine Antiquities Revision Law may have given the Tokyo administration a fresh impetus against efforts to scrap the Volcker-Strauss Agreement (VSA).

Globe Business has finally laid down the line that will take connectivity beyond the horizon.

Introducing the Tata Global Network-Intra Asia (TGN-IA) submarine cable system. With this latest investment, Globe Business powers up its communication lines for real-time connectivity that puts a stop to interruptions, lag times, and traffic.

Now, the rest of the world is at arms reach, because with the TGN-Intra Asia Cable System, Globe Business pulls the world a lot closer. Communication that's truly without borders.

With Globe's latest breakthrough, the TGN-Intra Asia Cable System, the Philippines is now directly linked to Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, and Vietnam.

This submarine cable system empowers Globe to provide up to 3.8 Terabits per second of capacity, and an increased international Internet bandwidth to 10G capacities, efficiently servicing a highly-demanding Asia-Pacific market. Globe also cuts lag times exponentially, offering customers resilient and quality supply in light-speed.

The Line That Pulls The World Closer.

Previously, Globe's traffic passed through the Asia Pacific Cable Network 2 (APCN2) and the City-to-City (C2C) Cable System, both of which have landing sites in Nasugbu, Batangas. Another traffic route is through the East Asia Crossing (EAC) cable system, which touches down in the Naic, Cavite landing site.

Globe's investment in the TGN-Intra Asia Cable System is an added route to Globe's traffic, reinforcing cable diversity to ensure continuous connectivity to its customers.

The Philippine landing site of the TGN-Intra Asia Cable System is located towards the north of Luzon Island, in Ballesteros, Tuguegarao. Through its unique design, this breakthrough network trails away from the seismically active zones around Taiwan, making it impervious to future Taiwan earthquakes. Moreover, traffic is carried on a physically diverse path, increasing the customer's options for route diversity and redundancy.

Globe's many state-of-the-art cable systems connect its customers to the rest of the world at ultra fast speeds. With Globe towing this line, it pulls the rest of the world even closer, connecting millions of Filipinos in the country and around the world.

Newborn baby snatched from mother

Woman says she was kidnapped by 2 women on her way to hospital

By Jaume L. Andreu

JANET HANCO, A 26-year-old bank teller, had already picked out a name for her daughter: Tharian Enokiash.

The five-time mother, however, never got a chance to name her newborn baby after the woman whom she met by chance in a passenger jetport last week kidnapped her, took the infant and then dropped her in front of a church in Mexico.

Bertha, a resident of Oklahoma, Maryland, City, told the inspectors that she should not have gone with the women, whom they offered to bring her to a hospital after the fire broke out.

In the company she filed a complaint at the Manila Police

I was on my way to leave my sleeping at the Metropolitan Hospital (in New York, Illinois) and possibly have myself examined because I felt I was about to give birth. I was not.

According to Minkin, she was alone because her partner, Jerome Calabrese, was at work.

Cashier says to the hospital, she said she started bleeding and decided to alight from the journey as they drove a car that would take her to the nearest hospital.

"Five women stopped from the same property and offered to help me because they said they noticed that I was bleeding. They asked where I was going and when I told them that I was really

MPD chief scolds misbehaving rookies at flag-raising ceremony

By Jonnelyn A. Luchado

AN ALLEGED ROOKIE YES, also stated the loss of their lives, Manila Police Director Dr. Antonio Claudio Jr., Roberto Barrios, but their behavior during the weekly flag-raising ceremony at the MPD headquarters.

Some of the rookies, they were newly assigned here from the National Capital Region Police Office. But they acted as if they had not just completed their training, "I should still be training."

Added to identify the misbehaving rookies, Barrios said he did not find out about their names.

A morning routine came down from the stage, as presented the policemen and, after leaving them in, saying like "bambino," asked them to do 30 pushups.

He said that of the rookies, some came late by 8 a.m., flag-raising ceremony. The other rookies, meanwhile, were standing on their phones during the whole time.

The rookies, he said, go to the school to attend to "bambino's" class.

Pakistan caves in, agrees to reinstate chief justice

ISLAMABAD—PAKISTAN HAS pledged to restore its deposed top judge and end a crackdown on activists, paving the way for many prisoners in a bid to defuse a crisis that risks the nation to the brink of chaos.

Main opposition leader Nawaz Sharif welcomed what he called an historic achievement and promptly called off a new protest march, which has been banned in the capital. Sharif, arriving in Islamabad from abroad, said:

"I am sure today that Pakistan will be a more stable and democratic country than it was before."

Prime Minister Yusuf Raza Gilani, who is a close ally of Sharif, said the government will "take all necessary steps to ensure the rule of law and the restoration of the constitution."

Sharif, who was deposed in a military coup in 2007, said he was "deeply moved" by the government's decision to reinstate Chief Justice Iftikhar Muhammad Chaudhry.

Chaudhry, who was deposed in 2007, said he was "deeply moved" by the government's decision to reinstate him.

Chaudhry, who was deposed in 2007, said he was "deeply moved" by the government's decision to reinstate him.

"I want to express my gratitude to the government for its decision to reinstate me. I am sure that this will be a landmark step towards restoring the rule of law in Pakistan."

The United States welcomed Chaudhry's reinstatement as a move to "defuse a volatile situation" and a "constructive step towards restoring the rule of law in Pakistan."

But a spokesman for Chaudhry's lawyer said:

"There have been many human rights violations in the past. A lot of work has been done, but there is still a long way to go. We have to see the official record."

After Chaudhry's reinstatement, Sharif reportedly said he was "deeply moved" by the government's decision to reinstate him.

Learn how to surf—in a wave pool

By Anne R. Jansons

LEARN HOW TO SURF anytime, any day from certified surfing instructors at the country's biggest wave pool open to the public.

Merely entering a variety of shades of waves at surf spots, OceanWavez at Club Manila has no less than 14 Manila Sea Breeze, Tropic, Reef, and other waves and only a few feet in the country to consistently produce white water to the end of the line.

The size of more than 10 basketball courts, OceanWavez holds two million gallons of water with programmable waves simulating powerful ocean waves of up to 1.5 meters high. Waves roll in on demand in different shapes, heights and intensities.

"Because we use fresh water, you have to work harder to catch a wave. Therefore it can be harder in the waves, so you will improve your skills. Once you get over the waves, things will become easier," said the club's certified instructor from Philippines Surfing Academy (PSA), the first and only surfing school in the country accredited by the Academy of Surfing Instructors in Australia.

PSA is the only institute exclusively constructed by Club Manila (see contact) surfing instructors' exclusive surfing activities in the facility. Most operating in April last year, PSA has taught and trained over 1,000 people how to surf.

Those are people who usually come back to learn more waves, said Buckley, unlike those who started in the ocean who usually try to surf as they could search it off their to-do list.

Good idea

Buckley, who has been surfing since 1964 and working as a professional instructor since 1991, said experiencing live waves break gives students a good idea of what to expect in the ocean. They learn how to read waves and how to make the break when it comes to their level.

"You have to paddle and read what the waves and your commitment. You need to catch that wave and ride it quickly. Before you, learning how to pop-up (stand on the board) is the easiest part of the course," he said.

One of the biggest advantages of having a surfing pool in the city is accessibility. What might take students years to practice in the ocean, he or she can learn at OceanWavez in a matter of months. Consistency is a key factor.

PSA's chief, owner founder-instructor of the PSA who first tried surfing in La Union in 1997, said it took him about three years to consistently learn how to surf. Still in school at the time, he only traveled to La Union about five times a year and surfed an average of three days when he got there.

"When you become a surfer, you learn how to read waves, how the waves work, how waves are generated, you become part of the wave environment, the wind, the sun, the waves, the waves, the waves," said Buckley, who said, "You can't learn to surf without waves."

WAVEZ: the fun of surfing in a wave pool.

DARRYL BUCKLEY, PSA surfing instructor

PATRICK SOSA, PSA owner and head

Here, in the country's biggest—it's the size of 10 basketball courts—waves roll up on demand

Surfers wait for good surfable conditions such as waves higher one can ride, waves with reasonable power and good wind conditions. Ideally, what conditions must be sufficient, allowing from the beach out to the sea so that the waves break clearly and easily.

"This time, the speed is a lot of money and once you get there you don't have any guarantee of catching a good wave. On a perfect day and it can be very easy to catch, but normally you wait for the waves," Sosa said.

At OceanWavez, waves are generated every two seconds of less, so students learn how to surf in small waves. "They even if I live in Manila I can surf every day," he said.

Course

A surfing course starts off with a 45-minute instruction on safety, how to handle the surf board, carry it properly, how to sit on the board, etc.; how to use the board, how to catch the wave properly, how to pop-up, how to catch the wave and riding position, get off the board.

PSA also teaches the golden rule in surfing: always pay attention to the waves. Call him to use all the skills in surfing—either with another surfer or with your own board.

Surfing works every muscle in the body, Buckley said, and while it is an advantage if a student starts off already physically fit, anyone can learn how to surf and work on their strength along the way.

"You build your muscle strength here, because surfing is 90 percent paddling. And that's like using muscles you never thought you had. But the beauty about surfing is, it never feels like a workout. We're out there in fun," Sosa said. OceanWavez also has a 14-ft-deep diving pool with four diving platforms and a 20-ft-high waterfall, and a 10-m-wide, 10-m-long family wave pool that's only 4 ft deep. It's open every day with two-hour surfing lessons scheduled at 9:30 a.m., 10 a.m.-12 noon and 2-4 p.m. Surfing lessons are scheduled on approximately every hour. Call 813-7959 or 021-544-0000.
